

HOW IT WORKS

Most electric buses have big batteries that charge slowly overnight and then run down over the day. Our new ieTrams have special batteries that are much smaller but charge quickly.

We chose these buses because Fastrack has some very long routes and we serve Thameside 24 hours a day. This means a normal battery wouldn't be able to last all day.

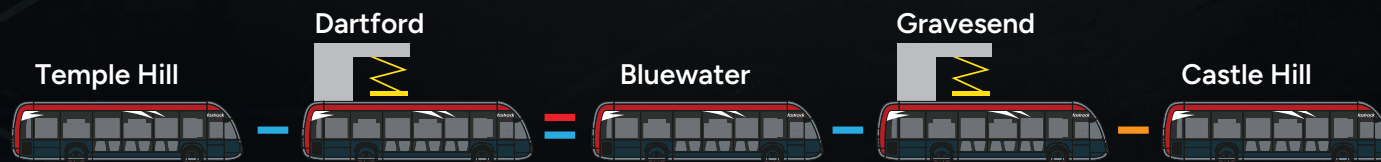

Instead, ours charge at the end of each trip they do. It usually takes about ten minutes for them to charge up. The bus can then go back out to continue serving communities in Thameside.

Our first pantograph charger is being installed at Gravesend. This will allow the B route to be electric.

This will soon be followed by the charger in Dartford, this will allow us to make the A route electric too.

We will be rolling the new buses out gradually and we will be training our drivers, so you might see them out and about before they're ready to pick up passengers.

Operated by GoAhead

Fastrack is an award-winning bus rapid transit scheme created by Kent County Council (KCC).

It is a network made up of dedicated bus-ways that link together the growing towns of Dartford and Gravesend.

The bus-ways allow the buses to be more reliable as they are less likely to be stuck in traffic.

It also means that bus travel is safer and smoother for passengers, as there are less hazards for drivers to contend with.

Go-Ahead has been contracted by KCC to operate the service since November 2024. As a leading public transport company, Go-Ahead connects billions of passengers across three continents with both trains and buses.

We are excited to partner with KCC for the next 15 years and look forward to serving the Thameside community.
